INSURANCE

ENDOWMENT INSURANCE

—IN THE—

NORTHWESTERN Mutual LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

Better than a Four per cent. Government Bond,

Which at a premium pays about 3½ per cent. interest.

Better than the Savings Bank, which gives no insurance, pays about 4 per cent. interest, from which you may withdraw your deposit at any time, or neglect to make it. It is easier to make money than to save it.

Better than Tontine Policies in other Companies as shown by comparison of results.

Results Accomplished.

THE NORTHWESTERN has paid over $3,300,000 matured endowments. Besides giving insurance these policies have returned the premiums with 4 to 5% per cent. compound interest.

THE ASSETS OF THE NORTHWESTERN, invested in the most productive and solid securities of the country have earned the past ten years above paying all expenses and taxes, an average of 4.27 per cent interest.

THE SURPLUS OF THE COMPANY over a 4 per cent. reserve is $3,022,612.

SINCE 1875 THE NORTHWESTERN has done better by its policy-holders than any company in the country. It needs only to be known to be preferred. Its policy-holders increase their insurance in the Northwestern.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A BRAVE LADY.

She Endures the Pain of a Severe Surgical Operation Without Taking Chloroform.

(From the Courier.)

Mrs. Schoonmaker, of Creek Locks, Ulster Co. N. Y., had the misfortune to entirely lose the sight of one of her eyes, through an accident, and endured painful inflammatory action therein for two long years; the other eye finally becoming sympathetically affected, her general health seriously suffering; indeed she was a mere wreck, a walking skeleton. In this terrible strait she consulted Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., who told her at once that the injured eye must be removed. She quietly but firmly said. "All right, Doctor, but don't give me chloroform. Let my husband sit by my side during the operation, and I will neither cry out or stir." The work was done, and the poor woman kept her word. Talk of soldierly courage! This showed greater pluck than it takes to face a hundred guns. To restore her general health and give tone and strength to the system, Dr. Kennedy then gave the "Favorite Remedy," which cleansed the blood and imparted new life to the long suffering woman. She rapidly gained health and strength, and is now well. The "Favorite Remedy" is a priceless blessing to women. No family should be without it. Your druggist has it. If not send to Dr. Dav d Kennedy, Rondout, New York. dec25 MW&F&wnrm.

NO USE FOR THEM.

Concerning Certain Relics of the Past—Dogs that have had Their Day.

George Stephenson's "Rocket," and the magnificent Locomotives of to-day, are built upon the same general principle, yet the machine with which the great engineer astonished his age, is interesting now only as an illustration of the beginning of the invention. There were plasters with holes in them long before BENSON'S CAPCIN FOR US PLASTER surprised both the public and the physicians; and the triumph of the Capcine is founded upon the partial successes or the utter failure of its predecessors. Everything of value in the old porous plaster is retained in the Capcine; but at this point all comparison ends, and contrast begins. For example:

The old plasters were slow in their action; the Capcine is quick and sure.

The old plasters lacked the power to do more than to impart slight, temporary relief in cases easy of treatment; the Capcine penetrates the system and permanently cures the troubles for which it is recommended.

The old plasters depended for any good results they might attain, upon an accident of their makers and the naked faith of their wearers: the Benson's reaches its ends by means of the scientific combination of the rare medical ingredients which it contains.

In brief, the old plasters, like Stephenson's discarded engine, are switched off the track, while the Benson's goes on its way winning golden opinions from all sorts of people.

Yet in this very fact lies the leading danger to the people who buy and use this reliable and scientific remedy. "Hypocrisy is the tribute vice pays to virtue." Imitation is the concession failure makes to success. Benson's Plasters are parodied in name and style.

Beware of swindles. The genuine have the word CAPCINE cut in the centre. Price 25 cents. Seabury & Johnson, Chemists, New York. jan10 WS&w2w2nrm

PLAIN TRUTHS

The blood is the foundation of life, it circulates through every part of the body, and unless it is pure and rich, good health is impossible. If disease has entered the system the only sure and quick way to drive it out is to purify and enrich the blood.

These simple facts are well known, and the highest medical authorities agree that nothing but iron will restore the blood to its natural condition, and also that all the iron preparations hitherto made blacken the teeth, cause headache, and are otherwise injurious.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS will thoroughly and quickly assimilate with the blood, purifying and strengthening it, and thus drive disease from any part of the system, and it will not blacken the teeth, cause headache or constipation, and is positively not injurious.

Saved his Child.

17 N. Eutaw St., Baltimore, Md. Feb. 12, 1880.

Gents:—Upon the recommendation of a friend I tried Brown's IRON BITTERS as a tonic and restorative for my daughter, whom I was thoroughly convinced was wasting away with Consumption. Having lost three daughters by the terrible disease, under the care of eminent physicians, I was loth to believe that anything could arrest the progress of the disease, but, to my great surprise, before my daughter had taken one bottle of Brown's IRON BITTERS, she began to mend and now is quite restored to former health. A fifth daughter began to show signs of Consumption, and when the physician was consulted he quickly said "Tonics were required;" and when informed that the elder sister was taking Brown's IRON BITTERS, responded "that is a good tonic, take it."

ADORAM PHELPS.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS effectually cures Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Weakness, and renders the greatest relief and benefit to persons suffering from such wasting diseases as Consumption, Kidney Complaints, etc.

Mills Shut Down for Lack of Water.

CAMDEN, Jan. 9—The Knox woolen mill and other mills along the river commenced this week running on half time, working only forenoons, for lack of water. The operatives are making barely enough to pay their board and mill owners are losing money, not being able to fill orders. No summer drought ever equaled this before in Camden on Megunticook river and never before in winter have the mills shut down for lack of water.

Death of Rev. James H. Rowell.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Jan. 9.—Rev. James H. Rowell, for many years pastor of the First Christian church at Kittery Point, Me., died Sunday of gangrene of the foot. He was 51 years of age. At one time he was settled in Bangor, Me. Mr. Rowell was elected Representative to the Legislature at the last election but was obliged to resign on account of his affliction. The funeral occurred today. Rev. George Moore Payne of York and Kittery church officiated and Rev. John A. Goss of this city delivered an address.

Horse Thief Arrested.

LEWISTON, Jan. 9.—On Monday, John Morary alias Russell of Massachusetts was arrested in Lewiston and taken to Lisbon, charged with stealing the horse of John Allen. He was tried before Justice Chamberlain and sentenced to a term in Auburn jail.

Mr. Morrill Still Alive.

AUGUSTA, Jan. 9.—Lot M. Morrill is yet living. He is much in the same condition as for the past two days. He is unconscious most of the time and is drawing nearer and nearer to death's door. He can survive but a few hours at the longest. The tenacity with which he clings to life is surprising, but the end must come very soon.

Eliot Bridge Company.

DOVER, N. H., Jan. 9.—The annual meeting of the Eliot Bridge Company was held here today and the following directors chosen: Col. John Bracewell, North Adams, Mass.; Chas. A. Sawyer, Chas. W. Woodman, T J. U. Pratt, James E. Lathrop, Dover; John E. Staples, York; Sylvester Bartlett, Eliot. A dividend of 4 per cent. was declared.

Stratford, Cocheco and Dover National Banks held their annual meetings today and elected directors. James E. Lothrop was chosen president of the Cocheco, Oliver Wyatt of the Dover, and Wm. S. Stevens of the Strafford.

Tennessee's Thieving Treasurer.

NASHVILLE, Jan. 9.—A private dispatch from Fort Worth says Polk passed there yesterday which would indicate that he had reversed his route and was now seeking entrance into Mexico by way of El Paso.

[LATER.]

The Governor has received a dispatch announcing the re-arrest of Polk in Texas by a deputy United States marshal, and that he will be held for requisition.

A box has come to light containing notes, due bills, checks and various securities aggregating $125,000, which Polk, the defaulting State treasurer, left with an attorney here with instructions to apply the proceeds towards insuring certain of his bondsmen against loss.

Gen. Theodore G. Ellis, who commanded the 14th Connecticut regiment at Gettysburg and to whom four rebel officers surrendered, died in Hartford yesterday. Since the war he has been civil engineer of Hartford.

XLVII CONGRESS--2d Session.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.

Mr. Brown presented the preamble and resolutions of the Legislature of Georgia, requesting Senators and Representatives from that State to use their influence to secure the passage of an educational bill liberal in its monetary provisions and well guarded against federal interference.

Mr. Beck presented a memorial of the faculty of Kentucky University for an appropriation from the national treasury in support of schools in the State.

Mr. Davis presented a similar memorial from the faculty of Amherst College.

Messrs. Gorman and Hawley presented petitions for a lightship outside Cape Hatteras.

Mr. Cockrell, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported adversely on the bill to fix the date of entry into military service and to correct the record of officers in the regular army who served as officers of volunteers; also from the same committee favorably on the bill granting right of way for railroads and telegraph lines through Fort Smith military reservation.

Mr. Cockrell gave notice he would call up this bill at an early day.

On motion of Mr. Vest, a resolution was adopted directing the Secretary of the Interior to transmit copies of all letters in regard to the contract made with certain parties concerning Yellowstone National Park.

Mr. Van Wyck called up his resolution offered yesterday requesting the Postmaster General to suspend contracts for daily mail service between Fort Niobrara and Deadwood, and from Chamberlain to Rapid City, until action was taken upon the bill introduced yesterday relating to this subject. Adopted.

Mr. Hoar, from the Committee on Judiciary, reported the House bill to extend the time for claimants to file their claims under the provisions of the act re-establishing a court of commissioners of Alabama claims.

Mr. Morrell called up the resolution abrogating the Hawaiian treaty. After discussion it was referred to the Finance Committee.

The West Point Academy bill, the consular and naval appropriation bills were taken up. The Senate insisted upon its amendments to these bills, and appointed a conference committee.

At 2 o'clock the President laid before the Senate as unfinished business the Presidential succession bill.

Mr. Edmunds pointed out some additional objections to the Secretary of State becoming acting President. Mr. Edmunds' motion to recommit the bill to the Judiciary Committee was lost—30 to 29.

The question was next on the amendment offered some days since by Mr. Morgan, providing that a Cabinet officer becoming acting President shall act only until the President shall have been elected or the vacancy is lawfully filled. Amendment agreed to.

After the adoption of other amendments the bill was put upon its passage, and it passed—yeas 40, nays 13.

Adjourned.

HOUSE.

On motion of Mr. Rice of Massachusetts the joint resolution for a new mixed commission on Venezuelan claims was made a special order for Jan. 10th.

The House resumed the consideration of the shipping bill.

Mr. Bisbee of Florida thought Congress had no constitutional power to enact such a law, and he fortified his position by citations of decisions of the United States Supreme Court.

Mr. Springer of Illinois was about to make an argument in the same direction, when a colored man in the gallery arose and began speaking, until ejected by the doorkeeper. Mr. Springer contended that it was a most extraordinary doctrine that Congress could interfere with State taxation not prohibited by the Constitution.

The regular order of business was interrupted that Mr. Blackburn of Kentucky might report back from the appropriation committee the military academy bill with Senate amendments. The amendments were nonconcurred in, and consideration of the shipping bill was then resumed.

Mr. Herbert of Alabama, said it was important that there should be a merchant marine, but he did not believe that that result would be accomplished by the pending measure.

Mr. Knox endeavored to get up his resolution declaring the Northern Pacific railroad land grants forfeited, but it was put aside for the star route witness bill.

Mr. Hammond of Alabama argued against the constitutionality of the section exempting ships from State taxation.

Mr. Reed expressed himself in favor of the general features of the bill.

Mr. Speer opposed the free ship amendment.

Mr. Ladd said it was time to correct the legislation of the past twenty years on the question of shipping, although he was afraid this bill would not completely complete the object it was designed to perfect.

Mr. Rosecrans declared he would vote for the bill if proper restriction was placed upon the eighteenth section.

After some further debate the bill was read by sections for amendments.

On motion of Mr. Crapo, the section prohibiting payment of advance wages to seamen was amended so as not to apply to seamen in the whaling business.

The bill then went over without action.

The Senate amendments to the diplomatic appropriation bill were non concurred in, and a conference committee appointed. A conference committee was also appointed on the military academy bill. Adjourned.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Indignant Election Supervisors.

BOSTON, Jan. 9.—General indignation is expressed by the supervisors of elections at the recent decision of Attorney General Brewster, that they are only entitled to five days' pay, and some will probably refuse to take the $25 allowed them. They will hold a meeting the 15th inst. to take action upon the matter.

NEW YORK.

Another Crank Confesses the Murder of Lord Cavendish.

ROCHESTER, Jan. 9.—A man who went by the name of Patrick Orville has confessed to being one of the participators in the murder of Lord Cavendish and Under Secretary Burke in Dublin last May. He confessed as Hugh O'Donnell at Holly, Orleans county, and is now in jail at Albion. The Post-Express publishes the confession in full to-day.

[SECOND DISPATCH.]

Hugh O'Donnell who stated he was one of the four assassins who killed Cavendish and Burke in Dublin some months ago was seen this morning by a Post-Express reporter but refused to talk. He has denied the story since it was first told, but stuck to it until he began to realize the likelihood of its leading him to the gallows, claiming entire ignorance of everything even the confession, and saying he was a lunatic. This morning however he showed his knowledge of it by emphatically denying it to the reporter before the matter was mentioned to him.

The Telegraph War.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—State Attorney General Russell appeared to-day in the Supreme Court before Judge Barrett to made application for leave to vacate the charter of the Mutual Union Telegraph Company. He said the Supreme Court had denied this application before on technical grounds. He said he would serve the papers in the suit to-morrow. He asked that the order be made returnable Friday next and Judge Barrett signed it. It directs the Mutual Union to show cause Friday next why its charter should not be vacated.

Sale of Plymouth Church Pews.

The annual sale of Plymouth church pews took place to-night. Total amount realized was $37,000. Of this sum $24,209 were for premiums.

MARINE NEWS.

British Ship Burned and Thirteen Persons Drowned.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—The British ship British Empire, Shields, for Bombay, has been burned at sea. Ten persons were saved, but two boats containing the captain and mate and 11 hands are missing.

The Loss of the City of Brussels.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Capt. Land says the gash inside of the steamer City of Brussels is eight feet wide and three feet deep. None of the passengers who were saved were even wetted. Steamer Kirby Hall, which ran down the City of Brussels, is now lying at Morpeth docks. She draws 18 feet of water. Her damage is above the water line. The cutwater is completely carried away from the 16 to the 24 feet mark, and the iron plates are curled up. Her port anchor is hanging over, ready to let go, which fact goes to confirm the captain's statement that he was feeling his way to an anchorage at the time of the collision.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 9.—The owners of steamer Kirby Hall have lodged a claim for £6000 damage to their vessel by its collision with the City of Brussels. Messrs. Inman claim £110,000 as their loss on the City of Brussels, which is exclusive of claims for cargo lost and the claims of the families of the drowned.

The Post says the rumor is current that one of the boats of the steamer City of Brussels when about to return to the scene of disaster in response to some cries for assistance, was prevented by a passenger drawing a revolver and threatening to shoot the first man attempting to turn back, and that the passenger explained that he acted thus because he feared the boat would be sucked under by the engine of the steamer.

TERRIBLE EXPLOSION.

Ten Men Perish in a Coal Mine.

BODIES OF ALL THE DEAD RECOVERED.

COULTERVILLE, Ill., Jan. 9.—An explosion occurred yesterday in Jones & Nesbit's mine while 12 men were in the mine. Two escaped; one named Mason being seriously injured. Relief parties have been unable to get into the mine owing to over powering gas. The 10 men are undoubtedly dead. The scene around the shaft is heartrendering, the families of the men bewailing their fate.

About 9 o'clock a party of miners effected an entrance into the mine and after two hours difficult and dangerous work the bodies of all the dead were brought to the surface. Two of the victims were badly burned but the remainder were simply suffocated and not mutilated in any way.

WASHINGTON.

Appropriation Bill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The House committee on appropriations considered the Senate amendments to the consular and diplomatic, military academy and Indian appropriations bills. The committee agreed to add $4,000,000 to the pensions appropriation bill as reported. This increases it to $85,000,000. The House committee on naval affairs agreed this morning to report in favor of an appropriation of $200,000 for torpedoes and $20,000 for testing defective armor.

Dickson's Case.

The charge of conspiracy against Dickson was nolle prossed in the police court today.

Star Route Case.

In the Criminal Court this morning, engaged in the trial of the star route case, Juror Green, replying to an inquiry from the court, said he saw the sick juror, Gill, yesterday afternoon and had been told that he would be present today. Walsh's name was then called, no answer being returned. At this point Juror Gill appeared and took his seat. The regular proceedings were then resumed and testimony taken relative to the operations of the service between Pueblo and Rosita.

A long wrangle took place relative to the introduction of some papers which was finally rebuked by the judge, who said this trifling with the court must cease. Another ruling of the court defining the duties of the jury seemed particularly repugnant to the defense, and it was excepted to, both on account of its subject matter and the language in which it was couched. At length, annoyed by frequent interruption, the court, turning to the jury, exclaimed, "Gentlemen of the jury, this is all wind, all wind; it is intended to have an influence upon you, when it should not." Finally the taking of testimony was resumed, Assistant Postmaster Marks of Pueblo being called to the stand. After some routine testimony the court adjourned to tomorrow.

Reports on Contested Seats.

The House committee on elections have reported in favor of seating John T. Cain, the claimant to the seat as delegate from Utah; also in favor of Sessinghaus (Rep.). in the Sessinghaus-Frost case from Missouri. The South Carolina case of Lee-Richardson and the Mississippi case of Buchanan-Manning will be considered to-morrow.

New Five-Cent Nickels.

The Secretary of the Treasury has authorized the coinage of a five-cent nickel piece of new design. It weighs 21 millimetres (which is one millimetre more than the present one) and is a little larger and thinner than the present one. On the face of the coin is a female head surrounded with a fillet upon which is inscribed the word, "Liberty," the whole being surrounded by thirte

THE PRESS.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, JAN. 10.

The Machine.

The political "machine," which the United States reformer feels called upon to condemn in and out of season, is in high favor with English Liberals, who seem to regard it as one of the most beneficent results of the discovery of America. While our newspapers and politicians are condemning this plan of party organization, many English newspapers and politicians of the Liberal persuasion are speaking words in its praise. Even so conservative a man as the Earl of Derby has this to say. "Forty years ago Sir Robert Peel said to his friends, as the practical sum of his political advice to them, 'Register, register, register!' If he had lived till now, the words would have been, 'Organize, organize, organize.' An organized party against one that is not organized is a disciplined force against a mob." In Birmingham Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, who is much admired by politicians of the New York Nation School, has "run a machine" for several years and thus managed to keep himself in office. Mr. Gladstone is also a capable machinist as well as a practical politician and wood-chopper.

Those Americans who praise the British machine but condemn the American have been complaining that the trouble with our machine is due to the spoils system. Happily that is done away with. Both Houses of Congress have passed the Pendleton bill. The country has been made good by statute. We are all virtuous now. There are to be no more cakes and ale on the national sideboard. The machine has been brought up to the correct British Standard. So of course the denunciations of it by independent journals will cease. It is now eminently English, and therefore quite the proper thing. It will now be good form to go into politics, you know.

It is not a little anomalous that while all the European potentates are talking peace and felicitating their subjects on the hopeful outlook of affairs, there is a quiet strengthening of armaments going steadily on, and the German Emperor is arranging the details of an increased military establishment. The rumor that German residents abroad had been notified to be in readiness to obey their army obligations has been semi-officially contradicted, but there is doubtless some foundation for the statement. It is quite evident that whatever the various governments may openly assert, they are all secretly looking forward to some sudden act of aggression which will precipitate a conflict of no narrow proportions. It is not easy to see just where this will occur, but it is not difficult, on the other hand, to note a great many points from which the entering wedge may come.

The circumstances under which William Prendergast has just been pardoned out of the Albany Penitentiary furnish a striking illustration of the fallibility of apparently conclusive evidence. Prendergast had been indicted for uttering a counterfeit silver dollar, and upon trial was convicted chiefly upon the testimony of an expert of twenty-five years' experience, who swore positively that the coin in question was a counterfeit, and a poor one at that. Subsequently, however, it was sent to the Treasury Department for examination, and was pronounced genuine. Of course the release of the wrongly-convicted prisoner followed as a matter of course.

There is much quiet significance and not a little keen sarcasm in a dispatch from Milwaukee which states that the efforts of Herr Most have not been very successful in that city, as many of those who were previously prominent as Socialists are now property owners. The beauties of the equalization of wealth theory fade very rapidly in the estimation of those who become possible contributors to the division pile. In fact it is only when the demagogue has all to gain and nothing to lose that Socialism has any satisfactory savor.

A week or so ago the Delawareans began to complain because one Henry Clayton—a Clayton no Delawarean had ever heard of—had been appointed Paymaster in the navy and credited to Delaware. It turns out now that this Clayton is from York, Pennsylvania, and moreover is a son-in-law of Judge Black, and brother-in-law of Pennsylvania's new Democratic Lieutenant Governor. Since it is the influence of a good old Democratic house which has infringed upon the rights of Delaware the Blue Hen's chickens are debarred from further repining.

The Tennessee authorities have peculiar ideas about the sacredness of signatures, forms, etc. It is stated now that one of the financial officers of that State while in New York some time ago to place the bonds, about which the present trouble exists, signed his own name to them where it was proper, and then signed for two other State officers who were absent, and when criticised for it, gave his opinion that the critic was over cautious. The latter said, "he wouldn't have any more Tennessee in his."

It is rather a refreshing novelty in European politics to be told that the Polish and Hungarian journals have commenced a systematic assault upon the Austrian Imperial Minister of Foreign affairs, on the ground that he is under the influence of Russian sympathies. Hitherto, the Austrian policy has been systematically hostile to Russia, and in all probability this assault comes from those who are disappointed in their expectation of war.

The daily reports from Chicago very plainly indicate that that city is just at present a capital place to live out of. Street footpads armed with deadly sand-bags, masked burglars, gamblers, swindlers, and Socialists appear to make the city a very Mecca to their lawless guild, and intimations are not wanting that the uniformed servants of the corporation are sleeping if not active partners in the resultant spoils.

Forewarned in the matter of small-pox is forearmed; universal vaccination is the price of safety. The scourge has been active at Minneapolis, and is very bad at Baltimore. Its appearance at these widely separated places, as well as at intervening points indicates that no city is secure from it this Winter. People not already protected will do wisely not to await the coming of an epidemic.

The party of extended annexation and colonial aggrandizement seems to be irresistible in both branches of the French National Legislature at the present time, and the consequences are seen in the appropriation of immense sums of money for the various French enterprises now on hand in Tonquin, Madagascar, Abyssinia, Tunis and the valley of the Congo river.

German papers take delight in commenting upon the fact that besides the three German-American members in the present (Forty seventh) United States Congress, there will be five more in the next one, meeting in December.

In Idaho a vast cavern has been discovered which is lighted by a mysterious flame rising from the floor. In it were found a human skeleton nine feet high and a massive statue of a woman. This lie has never been placed on exhibition.

The last occupants of the Tuileries were the birds, and they left when they saw that the "old thing" was really to be carted off as rubbish. But these tenants were much less objectionable to the people than their predecessors, the Bourbons and Bonapartes.

Tennessee, between repudiation and thieving officials, continues to be a mighty good State for both capital and labor to stay away from.

Posthumous Memoirs.

The Uncomfortable Effect of Keeping Diaries.

A little bit of scandal—although nothing very serious—has been caused by the publication of the third volume of the "Life of Bishop Wilberforce." It is thought by some people that the bishop's diary ought not to have been published just yet, if at all. He speaks very freely of many well-known men who are still living and rather alarms the susceptibilities of people who maintain that nothing of personal interest ought to be published until everybody is dead who was directly concerned in it. Whatever this theory may be worth, it is certain that "Soapy Sam" expressed his thoughts in his diary without much regard for the feelings of others. It is doubtful, perhaps, whether he ever intended the diary to be published, though possible that he may have deliberately made these entries with much secret enjoyment of the thought that he was preparing a lively entertainment for many of his good friends after his death. Although some parts of the diary as published may seem rather strong, others which have not been published were much stronger. The editor—one of the Bishop's sons—has kept out a great deal more "sensational" matter than he has put in. The Times says that there are passages in the new volume "which, if they do not make dead men turn in their graves, will at least make living men very uncomfortable." What it would have said if the whole of the diary had been published one can only faintly conjecture. No doubt it will be very unpleasant for Cardinal Manning to read this account of himself:—"Manning's appointment protested against by all the old Roman families in England, but the Pope would not listen. Manning most obsequious; creeps on hands and knees to kiss his toe, and even when bidden to get up, remains prostrate in awe. This delights Pio Nono." Bishop Wilberforce was no admirer of Disraeli, whom, indeed, he describes as "all over an Eastern Jew," a trickster and a charlatan. But then Disraeli refused to give the bishop the preferment to which he deemed himself entitled, and looked upon him as a man whose influence in the Church was greater for evil than for good. It is quite possible that when Disraeli's diary—for it is known that he kept one, though not very regularly—is allowed to see the light, it will be found that he did not leave the Bishop much in his debt. But there is not much chance that any of the late Conservative leader's papers will appear in our time. The fullest discretion was left to his executors, and they, it is understood, have come to the conclusion that nothing of any moment should be published for some years to come. It is possible, one cannot help thinking, to push delicacy of feeling in these matters a little too far. Many papers which would throw a great deal of light on obscure points in contemporary history are kept jealously locked up because the personages referred to in them are not yet dead. When they are issued most of their interest will be found to have evaporated. Diaries do not always improve with age. This, perhaps, was the conclusion which led Mr. Reginald Wilberforce to give to the world so large a portion of his father's papers. And he may have felt that without these relics of the man himself the attempt to fill three volumes with an account of his life would necessarily be a failure. No one who reads the work can doubt that he was right in so thinking, for the purely narrative part is dull and lifeless, and the only pages which will be "devoured" by the reader are those which are contributed by the Bishop himself.

Another volume is in the press which will give something for its critics to talk about—a selection from the correspondence and papers of Lord Lyndhurst, to be edited by Sir Theodore Martin. In this, however, no indiscreet revelations are likely to be made. Lord Lyndhurst never kept a diary, and his papers were carefully weeded out by his own hand. Then there are renewed whispers of a further instalment of the Greville Memoirs, more calculated to set people by the ears than even the three volumes which Mr. Henry Reeve published a few years ago, and which brought upon him the displeasure of very high personages. Lastly, there are some journals being prepared for the press which will be read with great interest on both sides of the Atlantic, for they contain anecdotes of many of the men who have been prominent in public life since the beginning of this century.

Anthony Trollope.

[London Spectator.]

Of no other writer, living or dead, could it be said, as may truly be said of him, that there are many who know the world—chiefly of course, though not wholly, the English world—far better from what they have learnt of it from his pages, than they would ever have known of it from the lessons of personal experience. Of all varieties of the English clergyman, of all varieties of the English squire, of almost all varieties of those who constitute the hunting and racing world, of many varieties of the English statesman and politician, of many varities of the English barrister and solicitor, of many varieties of the English civil servant, of not a few varieties of the merchant, stockbroker, tradesman, commercial traveller, and policeman, and of a vast variety of miscellaneous characters, Mr. Trollope has left us inimitable sketches so minute and complete that one can hardly distinguish those whom one has known in his pages from those whom one knows in real life. He used to say of himself that he had produced more volumes than any other English writer of this or any other day. And though the claim has been challenged, it is certainly true that no other writer who has written so much has missed his mark so seldom as Mr. Trollope. His own nature was robust and confident, but he had a singular aptitude for depicting delicate and shrinking natures, whenever he attempted it, though he succeeded better with men than with women. The external forms of English society in the nineteenth century are reflected in his stories with singular clearness, minuteness and fidelity. . . . That Mr Trollope's name will live in English literature follows at once from the fact that his books are at once agreeable to read and contain a larger mass of evidence as to the character and aspects of English society during Mr. Trollope's maturity than any other writer of his day has left behind him. It is too soon, and would be a mistake at the present moment, when he has only just vanished from among us, to fix what his place in English literature is likely to be. But we cannot think of him at all without remembering the greater features of his literary work—the ardent admiration with which he always painted humility and unworldliness, like Mr. Harding's or even Dean Arabin's, in the rare instances in which he represented them, and the sense of something like moral wonder with which he regarded them; the profound respect which he entertained for public spirit, like that of his second "Duke of Omnium," and the charity with which he regarded the authority of family traditions, even when waging war against the sense of justice in a radically just mind; the scorn which he felt for all the knavery of commercial rings, and at the same time the keen insight with which he contemplated the snares and toils of the speculative commercial life; the thorough appreciation which he evinced in such stories as "Phineas Finn," for the ties of party, as well as for the obligations of individual honor, and the zest with which he analyzed the conflicts which arise between them; the strength of his impression that almost every young man of his day has a vacillating heart, and that almost every young woman is in danger of over-ruling, for some strategic reason or other, whether interested or disinterested, the strong instincts of her own heart; the loathing with which he regarded the passion of jealousy in men, and the dread which he evidently entertained for the craftiness of women; the deep study he had given to all the tactics of social life, and the little account which he made of the results of even the most skillful of these tactics, when matched against the stronger passions and interests of human nature.

"La Reine Mab."

Mme. Caroline Jaubert only outlived her friend and "pupil," Louis Blanc, a week. She was twelve years his senior. But her old age was so green that her death took most of her friends by surprise. Mme. Jaubert, says London Truth, was also a friend of Charles Lever, who found in her the original for several heroines of his novels. She was an Irishwoman born in Paris. Her father was Count d'Alfon, and her mother was the daughter of Baron Shée, or Shea, who was governor of Strasburg under the first empire, and who had the courage to plead for the Duc d'Enghien when he ascertained that Napoleon had resolved to make a martyr of him. Mme. Jaubert was married early to a dense and priggish judge of the Court of Cassation. But he was intelligent enough to understand that she was morally and intellectually his superior. In her sa on he was a mere dummy; while Alfred de Musset, Berryer, Louis Blanc and De Morny paid her their court, he sat in an easy chair, holding his right foot in both hands and saying nothing. At the age of eighty Mme. Jaubert was still agreeable. She was, in point of size, a dwarf, but so beautifully proportioned and intelligent that her dwarfishness did not strike any one. There could never have been prettiness in her face. But Louis Blanc and other great men who sat at the feet of Mme. Jaubert often told me that the most beautiful women of her time were deserted when she appeared in a drawing room. Berryer christened her "La Reine Mab." There was surface wildness in her manner, but it lay over a deep substratum of good sense and shrewdness. A strong brain dominated very lively nerves and the heart was true and kindly. Mme. Jaubert was the confessor of most of the poets of her time. Lamartine admitted to her that the great error of his life was in not having married an Irish young lady, who took his fancy at the court of Charles X. Her name was Flood.

"So you have got twins at your house?" said Mrs. Bezumbe to little Tommy Samuelson. "Yes, ma'am, two of 'em." "What are you going to call them?" "Thunder and Lightning." "Why, those are strange names to call children." "Well, that's what pa called them as soon as he heard they were in the house."

Western Slang and Sentiment.

A Sporting Editor as the Mentor of a Young Woman Desiring Marriage.

[Chicago Tribune.]

"Oh my! Is this the place?"

A good-looking young lady stood in the door of the editorial rooms and looked carefully around the apartment.

"I want to see an editor," she continued—"the one that writes those lovely articles in the Sunday papers about 'satin de Lyon will be much worn this Fall,' and 'Cape May fashionables do not consider striped bathing-suits fashionable,' and all those other sweet editorials about people who are going away this Summer, and everything like that, you know."

"I guess you are looking for the society editor," said the horse reporter. "He is out just now, but if you want to know when Goldsmith Maid trotted in 2.16¼, or what the two-mile record was in 1872, I could tell you all about it. What was it you wanted to see the society editor about?"

"Well," said the young lady, "I really hate to tell you about this matter, but mamma said the best way would be to go right to a newspaper and see what I had better do, because ever since papa died we haven't had any man to put us right about such things, and mamma thinks just as I do, that in a case like this a man would be ever so much more apt to decide right on what was best to be done, because women, you know, always let their feelings run away with their judgment, and frequently make mistakes in matters that perhaps affect their whole future existence. I told mamma that it seemed awfully queer to me to talk to a strange man about any such thing as this, but she said editors were persons of great experience, and since dear papa was dead it would be a good deal better to find out what some man of experience thought about it before I went any further."

"Your father must have left a large property?"

"Well, he did," replied the girl; "but what made you think so?"

"Oh nothing," replied St. Julien's friend, "only I have noticed that lucky men are generally rich."

"Well, of course I don't know anything about that," said the young lady; "but anyhow mamma thought I had better see some of you gentlemen about my affair. I am in love, you know, with a young man, and we are corresponding right along, but he doesn't seem to progress any about what I am thinking about, you know, and mamma says that probably my letters aren't quite tender enough, and it seemed to me that an editor ought to know about anything like that."

"Did you ever try the blanks-between-the-stars racket?" asked the reporter.

"The what?"

"The blanks-between-the-stars racket. That's a daisy, and unless this young fellow is pretty fly, the chances are that you will land him on the first throw. I have seen some pretty wise young men go against that deadfall and get caught—not dry-goods clerks or any such tissue paper duds as those, you know, but boys that had been out after 9 o'clock for so-ral consecutive nights, and were supposed to be right in the front end of the procession all the time."

"I'm sure I don't know what you m-an," said the young lady, "but I will try this"—

"Well," said the horse reporter, "the next time you write to Ethelbert, or whatever his name is, you just give it to him strong about the deathless passion that your heart holds for him—a heart that has never before known what it was to be tortured by doubts and fears that the one on whom the priceless treasure of its love was set might prove unfaithful to that love, unworthy of the trusting heart which gave it birth. This will wake him up pretty well, and then is the time to find out where he lives. Say that without his love life would be an arid waste upon whose burning sands lay the whited skeletons of Love and Hope. That the days on which no letter comes from him are as the blanks between the stars—seeming all the more blank and cheerless because of the brightness on either side.

"Do you think that would have the desired result?" asked the girl.

"If it doesn't," replied the horse reporter, "you are lucky to lose him."

Bowing.

[All the Year Round.]

The bow, that "touchstone of good breeding," says a French writer, has undergone strange mutation since the obsequious days of the Georges. Now the body must not be bent, only the head inclined, cordially or otherwise, according to circumstances, genuflections are relegated to dancing and posture masters, whose palmy days are now a record of the past. In the time of the Merrie Monarch the plumed and jewelled hat was doffed with a sweeping grace to the very ground, and there held till the lady so saluted had passed or retired. Now the hat is simply raised in recognition of a fair acquaintance, who must give the initiative by a slight inclination of the head, and we are informed, by an aristocratic authority on matters of etiquette, that "a gentleman returning the bow of a lady with whom he is but slightly acquainted would do so with a deferential air," but if there were an intimacy he would raise his hat with greater freedom of action, "and considerably higher." In France it is the gentleman who bows first, and there, too, the bow is the signal of recognition between members of the sterner sex; in England a nod suffices. The two most polite—in the old-fashioned sense of the word—of our kings, Charles II. and George IV., took off their hats to the meanest of their subjects.

A lady's obeisance to royalty, fifty years ago, was an acrobatic feat. The knees were bent and the body slowly brought forward in graceful and reverent guise, the equilibrium being recovered by a backward movement very difficult to perform with ease. But our monarchy waxes old, and republican manners, assertive of independence, make high-flown courtesy ridiculous; now a curtsy to royalty is merely a deep dip, a sudden collapse as if on springs, and as sudden a re-attainment of the perpendicular.

PORTLAND DIRECTORY FOR 1883

The canvass for the PORTLAND DIRECTORY for 1883 has been commenced, and the publishers take this occasion to thank the citizens and business men of Portland for the generous patronage given them last year, and for the courtesy and aid extended to the canvassers in their work. The rapid sale of the copies of the Directory not subscribed for, and the many calls for it since, shows that the publishers were not mistaken in their belief that a city of the size and enterprise of Portland needed and would readily and generously sustain a yearly issue of the same. They hope to make the Directory for this year more complete and valuable than the last, and to this end respectfully solicit a continuance of the aid of our citizens in the way of advertising and subscriptions, and especially by kindly assisting the men in their canvass at houses and places of business, as the value of a directory is its correctness, and they cannot make it so without such help.

Holiday Greetings that Pay.

During the past year the advertisement of Flemming & Merriam, Commission Merchants, Chicago, has regularly appeared in our columns. This firm has just sent out to their customers, in shape of holiday greetings, the December profits, together with full statement of their Fund W, which has paid regular monthly profits to its patrons for the past year, in fact, for the past twenty months. For those who desire small or medium speculative investments, this enterprising firm offer superior facilities and inducements.

American Turning Company.

The annual meeting of the American Turning Company was held at the office of Bacon & Thompson, Union wharf, yesterday afternoon. The annual reports were read, which were of an exceedingly gratifying and even flattering nature. They showed the prospects of the American Turning Company would compare with those of any American industry. The election of officers resulted as follows:

Directors—H. F. Furbish, Geo. S. Hunt, W. R. Wood, John A. Emery, D. W. Snow, F. E. Thompson, Daniel H. Bacon.

Treasurer and Clerk—George E. Bird.

Meeting adjourned for two weeks to hear the report of the special committee, consisting of Messrs. J. Marshall Brown, George Walker, C. H. True, C. B. Rogers, W. P. Chase.

Longfellow Soliciting Committee.

All the committees of solicitation for the Longfellow statue will be in the field this week and complete their work at an early day. It is to be hoped that our citizens will respond so liberally as to assure the success of the undertaking. No other city of the size of Portland is without its statues and public monuments. Let us have one statue and we will have other works of art to adorn our beautiful city. Money given for this purpose is money well invested.

Hair Dressers' Union.

At the annual meeting of the Hair Dressers' Union, held last evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Chester I. Orr.
Vice President—John B. Pike.
Secretary—John M. Small,
Treasurer—F. E. Rollins.

Brief Jottings.

Fine morning yesterday; cloudy and raw in afternoon. Mercury 10° at sunrise, 25° at noon, 22° at sunset; wind north north-east.

The Portland Telephone Exchange added 10 subscribers and disconnected 5 in December. The company has 444 subscribers in Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

The teams of Orin Shaw and James Jenks collided sharply on the shell road Thursday, throwing both drivers out. Mr. Jenks' horse ran away, jumping over a fence and smashing the sleigh to pieces. Mr. Shaw's sleigh was considerably damaged.

President Jackson and General Manager Tucker of the Eastern railroad, have completed their tour of inspection, and report the entire road in a most satisfactory condition.

The Longfellow Statue Association will hold a meeting in the Aldermen's room to-day, at 4 o'clock p. m.

Copies of the printed constitution of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument Association will be ready to-day, and may be found at the Custom House, at the offices of the PRESS, Argus and Advertiser, and at the stores of William E. Thomes, in Clapp's Block, and at Smith & Abbott's on Union street.

The main shaft at the Portland Company's works gave way Monday, necessitating the shutting down of the works for a few days. The accident was probably the result of the great strain brought on the engine by the immense amount of work upon it for some time back.

Michael Franklin, whose legs were cut off at the Grand Trunk, Monday, died yesterday morning at 8 o'clock.

About fifty Master Masons went out from the city Monday night, to assist the Gorham Masons in working Gov. Robie through the third and making him a Master Mason. The result was satisfactory. An elegant banquet was served after the ceremony. There were delegations present from Lewiston, Cornish and elsewhere.

At Conway Centre, Monday, the engine Carrigain, on the P. & O., broke a crank, and was run to the city by one crank, bringing in the train—a freight—on time.

The Portland & Ogdensburg have begun to occupy their new engine house on their new purchase at Thompson's Point.

Officer C. P. Covell has resigned from the police force and is now night watchman at the Grand Trunk depot.

The new lodge of Odd Fellows at Gorham, will be instituted next Monday evening.

R. G. Harding has recovered.

The Hair Dressers' ball at City Hall, Monday night, for the benefit of the Union, will be well patronized, since it is given for a worthy object. Chandler will furnish the music.

Another brilliant party gathered in the Fraternity course at City Hall last evening. Chandler's music was delicious.

Mr. George H. Poor, master mechanic of the Portland & Ogdensburg car shops, has received a very flattering offer from the American Steam Brake Company of St. Louis, and will leave for there next week to look the prospect over.

A hotel proprietor says there is nothing in the statement that the proprietors of all the hotels, except the Falmouth, have signed an agreement to close up their houses on a certain date, to remain closed till such a time as they may be allowed to keep an open bar without molestation.

Gave It Dead Away.

In reference to the item headed "An Aged Juror," in yesterday's PRESS, the story goes that a Gorham man saw Mr. Stanwood among the Grand Jury, and asked a Portland liquor dealer, a friend of his, if Mr. Stanwood was not too old to serve on the jury. The liquor dealer told his counsel, who advised his client to keep quiet. The counsel intended to let Mr. Stanwood serve as foreman of the Grand Jury, sign the papers, etc, and then after the indictments were found, if there was one against his client, file a plea in abatement on the ground that the indictment was illegally found. The story further states, however, that the client couldn't keep the matter to himself, but told other liquor dealers. So the matter became known, and, although the fact of Mr. Stanwood being on the jury would not possibly have vitiated its doings, still his discharge and the election of a new foreman, with everything done according to law, prevented bringing the matter to issue.

Lost at Sea.

We take the following from the Dartmouth (England) Chronicle:

"News is just to hand of the sad death by drowning, of the youngest son of Capt. J. Wills, well known to many in Dartmouth, who, whilst on a voyage from Liverpool to Valparaiso, in the ship Bengarth, of Liverpool, fell overboard whilst doing duty on the lookout. His cries for help being heard, every effort was made to save him, but unsuccessfully, and he sank before assistance came. His untimely death at the commencement of what promised to be a successful career, is a severe blow to his parents and friends.

William Clement Wills, whose untimely death is thus described, was a brother to Reuben A. Wills, a well known printer of this city. Mr. Wills' large circle of friends here will sympathise with him in this great grief that has come so unexpectedly upon him.

Personal.

Mr. Wm. L. Fernald, collector of internal revenue for the fourth district of Virginia, has received from the Fifth Auditor's office, Treasury Department, Washington, a report covering a general statement of his accounts as collector from the time of his first occupation of his office until the 15th of September last, and showing that the entire collections of the office have been duly accounted for without loss or deficiency of any kind. In consequence of the death of two of his former sureties, Mr. Fernald gave a new bond in September, which was the occasion of the settlement above referred to. Mr. Fernald formerly resided in Portland, and his mother and sisters are residents of this city at present.

Suicide.

A dispatch from Boston says that a young seafaring man, who registered at Young's Hotel, in that city Monday evening, as William White of this city, committed suicide yesterday with laudanum. In the room we found his discharge papers from a ship, signed John Hickey of New Bedford, and evidences were found of an attempt by him to burn other papers. The only William White in the directory is Wm. H. White, mariner, Point Village, and Capt. Daniel White of Point Village is probably his father.

Mrs. Woolson's Lecture.

Mrs. Abba Gould Woolson delivered her second lecture at Union Hall last evening, before a very appreciative audience, on "Persian Themes in English Literature." Like the first lecture, this was marked by a thorough grasp of the subject on the part of the lecturer, whose charming manner made the information imparted all the more acceptable. It is a source of deep regret that Mrs. Woolson felt compelled to state she should not conclude the course, owing to lack of patronage, and therefore last night's lecture was the last.

THAT FORGED CHECK.

The Forger Tries His Game on Several Portland Firms.

The PRESS published a telegram yesterday morning, in regard to a forged check drawn on the Faneuil Hall Bank of Boston, and sent by a Portland bank to the Merchants' Bank of Boston for collection. The check was signed by Joseph B. Treadwell, and payable to Arthur C. Chapin.

The other day a man presented himself at G. A. Harmon's jewelry store, on Congress street, about noon, and purchased a clock, offering in payment a check on a Boston bank, payable to A. C. Chapman, and said if Harmon didn't desire to take the check to send the clock C. O. D. to him at Wills' Corner, Lewiston. The man handed Harmon his card, which bore the inscription:

A. C. CHAPMAN & SON,
GROCERIES AND HARDWARE,
NOTIONS & GENERAL SUPPLIES,
WILLS' CORNER,
A. C. CHAPMAN, } Lewiston, Me.
A. B. CHAPMAN, }
P. O. Box 79.

Mr. Harmon declined to cash the check and didn't send the clock, as he could not find any such place as Wills Corner, in the Maine Register. The man said he was in a hurry, as he desired to catch the Lewiston train.

The same man then went to A. Evans & Co's, furniture dealers, on Free street, and purchased a book case for $45, giving in payment the check for $100, and receiving $55 cash in change. It seems that on Saturday a fine looking lady called at Mr. Evans', examined the book case, and soon after a well-dressed, stylish young man, about thirty years old, came in and said he wished to see the bookcase his mother had been looking at. He referred to several of Mr. Evans' customers in Lewiston, and thus threw that gentleman off his guard. The young man offered the check, which had been duly certified, and was all in ship-shape condition. Mr. Evans cashed it as before stated, and his bank forwarded it to Boston for collection. Yesterday it was returned, protested.

The forger then went to Burbank, Douglass & Co., crockery-ware dealers, and presented a like check in payment for a barrel of goods.

The firm decided not to take the check, as its endorsement was not exactly in form, but sent the goods, amounting in value to $16.93, C. O. D., to Lewiston.

Yesterday Mr. Evans discovered the goods were awaiting Chapman's call at the Grand Trunk station in Lewiston, and ordered them held, so that both Portland firms will save their goods. There were other bundles at the Lewiston station awaiting Chapman's call. The Faneuil Hall bank reports several of these forged checks from Portland.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

CALLENDER'S MINSTRELS.

This company made an attractive street parade yesterday, in their bright uniforms, headed by the tall drum-major in the white bearskin, and went through the evolutions which delighted the street-crowds when the company was here before. They also favored the PRESS office with an excellent serenade.

In the evening Portland Theatre was packed to repletion, every seat was sold and men stood in the side aisles and at the rear of the house in rows three deep. The performance—the little we were able to see of it—was fully up to the standard. Of course Wallace King's and Lewis Brown's singing was far beyond the the average minstrel singer, while all the soloists pleased. Billy Kersands was encored several times. His mouth still holds its attractions. Armstrong's imitations and burlesques dog circus; the grand military pageant and army of clog dancers; Sergeant Simms' musket drill; the dancing Zouaves; the consolidated sextette; and, last, but not least, Bob Mack with his bantam, were all first rate. The sketch at the end of the programme was a capital picture of Southern life before the war. A pleasing feature was the arrangement of the company in the first part; the white dresses of the women, and the dark tropical plants in the background, contrasting pleasingly with the black faces, velvet coats and white trousers of the men in the foreground.

DREAMS.

Willie Edouin has got it so fixed that he plays the photographer in the second act of "Dreams" and has a lot of new business. By the alterations, Miss Alice Atherton is brought into greater prominence in the piece than before, and with her admirable portraits of prominent people fairly divides the honors with Mr. Edouin. The company will be at Portland Theatre Thursday and Friday evenings. Friday they will play "A Bunch of Keys."

ADA DYAS.

Miss Ada Dyas is one of the best actresses on the American stage. She was leading lady at Wallack's Theatre for several seasons, and will be leading lady of the Madison Square next. Miss Dyas will appear at Portland Theatre Saturday night supported by a first-class company as Hester Grazebrook in "The Unequal Match."

NOTES.

To-night Ragan will lecture on "Ramblings in Rome" in the Stockbridge course at City Hall.

A benefit will be given next Thursday evening at the Lyceum Theatre to Mr. George R. Lambe, who has been the efficient stage manager of this theatre. A fine programme will be given on that occasion. Let the patrons of this theatre turn out in full force and give Mr. Lambe a rousing benefit.

Cable messages to Manager Eugene Tompkins, of the Boston Theatre, received from Paris, state that Manzotti's new ballet, "Excelsior," which Mr. Tompkins bought for America, was brought out at the new Eden Theatre, and is a grand success.

Funeral of Matthew F. Whittier.

The funeral services of Mr. Whittier occurred at the Maverick House, East Boston, yesterday forenoon, and were conducted by Rev. James Freeman Clarke. Among the large number present were his brother, the poet, and other members of the family, J. T. Trowbridge, Mrs. James T. Fields, Sarah O. Jewett, and the Rev. Messrs. Twitchell, Scott and Potter of East Boston. The collector's department was represented by Col. W. H. Hart, Major H. G. Weymouth, Fred Grant and Captain C. M. Wilson. The delegation from the naval department consisted of Colonel Daniel Hall, J. H. Pope, C. C. Whittemore, Lewis A. Dudge, Frank P. Harriman and Captain C. M. Wilson.

Upon the casket was laid a floral cross, and this with a bunch of pansies which the poet held in his hand, comprised the floral offerings, which was in accordance with the wish of the deceased that there should be no elaborate display in that respect. After reading of the Scripture, the Rev. James Freeman Clarke in simple, effective language, spoke in memory of the departed, and alluded to the frequent use of the word "Sleep" as a synonym for death in the sermons and teachings of the Saviour. From this side death seems terrible; from the other it must seem of little moment. Christ, having a two-fold nature, human and divine, saw death as it really is. Having the divine nature he looked at it from the other side and saw it to be but sleep.

The Ruggles Street quartette sang at the opening the hymn, "Come Unto Me," and after prayer, the hymn which was particularly loved by Mr. Whittier, "Joyfully, Joyfully, Onward I Come." The services closed with the chant, "It is Well with My Soul." The remains were then conveyed to the Eastern Railroad station, to be interred in the family burying place at Amesbury.

Roller Skating Rink.

A large and fashionable audience attended this place of amusement last evening. There was quite a large party from Brunswick, including many ladies. The rink was prettily decorated with bunting, and the electric lights brilliantly illuminated the spacious hall. Among the skaters from Brunswick we noticed many who made a very fine appearance, and showed very graceful skating. Portland turned out her finest skaters, and her ladies will take rank among the finest in the land in the skatorial art. On the side and at one end were stationed the bands, furnished by Chandler, and during the evening they discoursed music (alternately) in a manner that made skating an enjoyment to the skaters and a pleasing concert for the lookers-on. The management deserve the highest praise for the way in which they are endeavoring to place before the public these attractions, and we hope they will meet with the success they deserve.

Real Estate Transfers.

The following transfers of real estate have been recorded:

Harrison—Charles S. Whitney to Horatio N. Cole, lot of land.

Bridgton—Hannah and Alvin Flood to George E. and S. P. Crocker, land and buildings.

Naples—Charles F. Davis of Medford, Mass., to Ira C. Crocker of Naples, lot of land.

BIOGRAPHICAL

Sketches of Cumberland Members of the House and Senate.

(From Mr. Howard Owen's "Biographical Sketches.")

SENATORS.

McLAUGHLIN, CHARLES, Portland, (Cumberland county.) Republican, in the matter of religion accepts that which is good in all, and rejects none, unless it conflicts with the laws of God or man; wholesale merchant, married; aged 55. Born on "Beech Ridge," in the town of Scarborough, where they paper their rooms with the Eastern Argus, so they can read their prayers in the morning before they rise. Educated in the common schools. Member of the House in 1878, and was one of the most influential members of that body. Extensively engaged in the wholesale grocery business. Always a Republican.

NUTTING, ALBERT F., Otisfield, (Cumberland county.) Republican, Congregationalist, farmer, married; aged 47. Born in Otisfield, and received an academic education. Has held the offices of selectman, supervisor of schools, town clerk, &c. Members of the last Senate. Always a Republican.

YOUNG, STEPHEN JEWETT, Brunswick, (Cumberland county.) Republican, Unitarian, Treasurer of Bowdoin College, married; aged 43. Born in Pittston, educated at Bowdoin College and University of Berlin, Prussia. Member of House of Representatives in 1878-79-80.

LORD, TOBIAS, Steep Falls, Standish, (Cumberland county.) Republican, Congregationalist, merchant, married, aged 35. Born in Steep Falls, and educated in Saco and Gorham. Clerk in the War Department, Washington, 1864. Member of the Maine House in 1879 and 1880, and of the Senate in 1881. Always a Republican.

REPRESENTATIVES.

HALE, CLARENCE, Portland. Republican, Congregationalist, lawyer, married, aged 34. Born in Turner; educated at Bowdoin College, graduating in the class of 1869; studied law with Eugene Hale and L. A. Emery, at Ellsworth; after which commenced practice in Portland, where he has been engaged in the practice of his profession from 1871 to the present time. Was on the school committee of Portland for several years and city solicitor for the past three years. Always a Republican.

THOMAS, ELIAS, Portland. Republican, Unitarian, merchant, married; age 40. Born in Portland, and educated in the public schools of that city. Never held office. Always a Republican.

AMES, DANIEL W., Portland. Republican, Congregationalist, merchant, married; age 52. Born in New Sharon, and attended the common schools. Two years treasurer of Somerset county, and postmaster at South Norridgewock. A Democrat prior to 1856.

GERRISH, ORVILLE K., Portland. Republican, in the nursery stock business; age 42. Born in Sumner, Oxford county, and received an academical education. He has never held office until now, except to serve on the school board. Is a member of the bar. Always a Republican.

MATTOCKS, CHARLES P., Portland. Republican, Episcopalian, lawyer, married; aged 42. Born in Danville, Vt. He was fitted for college at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., under Dr. Taylor; entered Bowdoin College in 1858, from which he graduated in 1862. He immediately entered the Seventeenth Regiment Maine Infantry as first lieutenant, and participated in all the battles of the Army of the Potomac, from the first battle of Fredericksburg until the surrender of Lee, except for a period of nine months when he was a prisoner of war. For gallant and meritorious services on the field of battle he was promoted through the various grades of office, and in May, 1865, was breveted brigadier-general, to date from General Lee's surrender. For gallantry and bravery at the battle of Little Sailor's Creek and Amelia Springs he was breveted from major to colonel. His war record is a brilliant one, and besides service in the field includes experience in the prison pens of the South. After the close of the war he read law with Hon. Edward Fox, formerly judge of the United States District Court; entered Harvard Law School in 1866, from which he graduated in 1867, and immediately began practice in Portland, where he has remained in the continuous practice of his profession. He was admitted to practice in the courts of Maine July 31, 1866, in the U. S. Circuit Court April 2, 1869, and in the Supreme Court of the United States Nov. 28, 1877. He was appointed county attorney by Governor Chamberlain, and elected for a full term, serving in 1871-73. In 1868 he entered the State militia as captain, and was colonel in 1879, but resigned on account of the pressure of business. Aside from his law business he carries on a large farm in Baldwin, where his imported thoroughbred stock and the fine bred stock of his own breeding may be seen, second to none in the State. He is president of the Winslow Packing Company, which operates fifteen corn factories in this State.

DUNNELL, JOSEPH, Westbrook. Republican, Baptist, paymaster in the Cumberland & Presumpscot Mills Paper Company, married; age 65. Born in Buxton, and educated in the common schools, and at Kennebunk (Me.) and Hampton (N. H.) academies. Held the office of clerk of customs at Portland. A brother of Hon. M. H. Dunnell, Minnesota. Formerly a Whig.

HASKELL, CHARLES P., New Gloucester. Democrat, Congregationalist of the straightest sort, farmer and lumberman, married; age 47. Born in New Gloucester, and educated at the village school. Postmaster from 1861 to 1870; moderator of town meetings, selectman several years; member of school committee, justice of the peace, at present supervisor of schools under the town system, executor, administrator and assignee of estates, and various other public positions of lesser note. Republican until 1872, then a supporter of the father of the Republican party, Horace Greeley; since then a Democrat.

LEAVITT, GEORGE B., Stroudwater, Deering. National Greenback; no religious preferences, farmer, married; age 38. Born in Saccarappa village; was educated in the public schools of that place, also at Gorham and Westbrook seminaries; taught school in that town and the adjoining towns of Westbrook and Scarborough; has been selectman, treasurer and collector, member of the last legislature. Formerly a Republican.

COOK, WILLIAM M., Casco. Republican, no religious preferences reported, farmer and lumberman, married; age 56. Born in Casco, and attended the town school. Chairman of the board of selectmen six years. Always a Republican.

HINKLEY, STEPHEN, Gorham. Republican, Congregationalist, tanner and currier, married; age 45. Born in Gorham and educated in the town schools and at Gorham Academy. Has been town treasurer for the past eighteen years. Trustee of the State Normal School. Always a Republican.

LANE, HENRY J., East Raymond, Democrat, Universalist, merchant, married; age 46. Born in East Raymond, and attended the town schools. Has held the offices of selectman, treasurer and trustee of school fund; postmaster since 1864. Always a Democrat.

STROUT, DANIEL, Poland Village, Cape Elizabeth. Democrat, Universalist, merchant, married; age 52. Born in Cape Elizabeth, and attended the town schools. Has been in trade from 1859 to the present time. Member of the last House. Always a Democrat.

SHAW, LORENZO L., Yarmouth, Republican, Congregationalist, cotton manufacturer, widower; age 57. Born in Holderness, N. H., and attended the district school. Has served as alderman in Hallowell and Lewiston.

KENDALL, JOHN C., Freeport. Republican, farmer, married; age 50. Born in Freeport; attended the common school; Town Clerk ten years. Chairman board of Selectmen for the past five years. Enlisted in the 25th Me. Regt. 1862, chosen 1st Lieut. of Co. G. Served on the staff of Gen. Francis Fessenden. Adjt. 30th Me. Regt. Participated in the battles of the Red River campaign under Gen. Banks. Promoted to Capt. Co. E. Afterwards in the Shenandoah Valley under Gen. Sheridan. Member of the last House. Always a Republican.

TRUFANT, ALBERT T., Harpswell. National Greenback, Free Christian, merchant, married; age 48. Born in Harpswell, and brought up on a farm. At the age of twenty years began ship carpentering, at which he worked six years, and then went into business. He is now engaged in transacting one of the largest fishing businesses on the coast of Maine, in buying and curing fish. He owns all or a portion of ten vessels. Formerly a Republican.

TALBOT, FREDERICK W., Falmouth. Democrat, Congregationalist, master mariner, married; age 68. Born in Freeport, and attended school there. Followed the sea thirty-seven years, twenty-five as master. Was ten years in the government employ, in charge of light houses, buoys, beacons, etc., in the first light house district. Always a Democrat.

Vols., about seven months, and in the U. S. Signal Corps some four years. Member of board of Selectmen four years; S. S. Committee three years.

Gen. Stephenson's Lecture.

Rev. E. C. Hood said of Gen. Stephenson's lecture on "Gettysburg" which will be delivered at City Hall, January 18th:

"The lecture by Gen. Luther Stephenson, Jr., on the battle of Gettysburg last Tuesday evening, at Hingham, was listened to by a large audience, and with many tokens of hearty appreciation. It was a manly portrayal of the personal experiences of a soldier. It combined the accuracy and dignity of history with the vividness of a story told by an eye witness. By the help of the stereopticon the hearers were shown the village of Gettysburg, the natural fortifications surrounding it, the positions of the contending armies, and the life-like faces of many of their leaders. The General had the closest attention as he gave the usually dry details of the battle; and while describing the magnificent charges, the deadly combats, the terrible carnage, and the miseries of the wounded, the exact feelings of those days of anguish were reawakened, and the hearers were reminded that this three days' battle was the most thrilling event of the war, if not in the history of the nation.

BURGLARIES.

The Burglar Caught With His Plunder.

Last evening, about 7 o'clock, as Officer McCallum was patrolling his beat, he noticed a small light in the back storeroom of Twitchell, Champlin & Co's, corner of Commercial and Cross streets. Although he presumed some of the clerks were the parties using the light he thought he would wait a little while and see. In a few moments there emerged from the front door a man who carried a box of tobacco under each arm. McCallum interviewed him and, finding he was a stranger in Portland kindly invited him to the police station. The fellow said his name was George Brown of New Bedford, Mass. Officer McCallum is to be congratulated on his success. The way Brown got into the store was by breaking a pane of glass in the door, and slipping back a bolt.

On Monday night the store of A. K. P. Leighton & Co., on Commercial street, was entered and ransacked but as yet the firm have not discovered any loss. Very likely Brown entered this store also.

The Grand Trunk.

The Boston Journal says: "Since the Grand Trunk swallowed the Great Western and one or two other concerns there has been some curiosity to see how the Grand Trunk would come out financially. The annual reports of both the Grand Trunk and Great Western Railways were issued from the company's office in London, Jan. 1, together with statements of accounts to the 11th of August last. The accounts show a balance available for dividend on the first and second preference stock of £170,000, or $826,000. After the payment of 3 per cent. on both stocks $2,060.04 is carried forward. The increase of working expenses of the road is slightly greater than the increase of receipts. The Great Western Road's earnings are insufficient to meet the dividend of 5 per cent on the preference stock, and the deficiency of $29,160 is made good out of the items at the credit on the company's book, in conformity with the deed of union. The passenger traffic shows an increase of 15 per cent., but this increase is swallowed up by a decrease of 20 per cent. in the freight earnings. The working expenses are slightly higher. The ordinary meeting of the proprietors of the united company will be held in March, when the accounts from the date of union to December will be submitted. The directors congratulate the proprietors on the benefits which have already been derived from fusion, and the marked success attending it, which they regard as the commencement of a new era, with improved prospects."

Military Funeral.

The remains of Past Commander James Marshall of Edwin Libby Post, Grand Army of the Republic, Rockland, were brought to this city yesterday for interment. A delegation of officers from the Rockland Post accompanied the remains, as well as the family of their comrade. The delegation consisted of the following gentlemen: B. P. Barckley, quartermaster; J. F. Singhi, surgeon: Rev. H. A. Philbrook, chaplain. On arriving at the Maine Central station, they were met by members of Bosworth Post, who buried the Past Commander with military honors, from St. Dominic's church.

Comrade Marshall enlisted in the Twenty-fifth Me. Vols., commanded by Col. Fessenden.

The Fish Commission.

The success of the Penobscot salmon in the Merrimac has led to the re-opening of the works near Bucksport, with the co-operation of the United States commission. By means of the contributions from several of the New England States, together with the assistance of the national government during the past three years, the hatching works near Bucksport have been sending out a large supply of excellent salmon spawn. The commission has also made successful experiments in cultivating carp. The expenses of the commission amounted to $4,983 11.

Presumpscot Pulp-Ware Company.

At the annual meeting of the Presumpscot Pulp-Ware Company the following officers were elected:

President—Charles A. Brown.
Treasurer—Elias B. Denison.
Secretary—Augustus F. Moulton.
Directors—Charles A. Brown, Elias B. Denison, Wm. L. Chase, Leander W. Fobes, Augustus F. Moulton, Charles S. Fobes, Prentiss Loring.

Todd Hydrant Company.

The Todd Non-Freezing Hydrant Company elected the following officers yesterday:

President—Orville K. Gerrish.
Secretary and Treasurer—J. J. Gerrish.
Directors—Orville K. Gerrish, J. J. Gerrish, S. C. Andrews, Ardon W. Coombs, John F. Barrett.

Notice.

There will be a meeting of the colored citizens in the Fourth Congregational Abyssinian church for the purpose of taking some steps in relation to men who are collecting money in our city to pay for a church, and we invite all colored citizens to attend.

Per order committee,
W. W. RUBY and others.

Portsmouth to York Beach.

The Concord Monitor says of this project that according to present indications ample means of communication with York Beach will be provided before another season. The establishment of a steamboat line will make no difference with the proposed railroad from Portsmouth to York, and the prime movers in this latter enterprise are pushing forward with great energy. The question of raising the required funds and securing the building of the road is no longer in doubt, and it is proposed to organize a company at once. The various narrow-gauge roads are being examined, and no decision has yet been made as to whether the road shall be of 3 feet or 2 feet gauge. The former can be built and equipped ready for business for $100,000, while the latter will cost $90,000. Several thousand dollars' worth of stock have already been subscribed for and the entire amount promises to be taken readily.

Mechanic Falls.

Mr. J. W. Penney, machinist and engineer, has enlarged his shop by the addition of a forge room, and has recently purchased a new Putnam lathe, the best in the market, costing with chuck, &c., about $1200. Mr. Penney has completed an elegant 25-horse-power engine for Boston parties, and has another under way for the same market. This branch of business in our community seems to prosper and we wish him success. Mr. Penney's engines are to be found in nearly all the business centres of our own State and now it seems they are destined to go abroad.

THE PRESS.

Lovewell's Fight.

[In response to a query in the Boston Transcript a correspondent of that journal writes:—"I find in the Collection of Historical and Miscellaneous and Monthly Literary Journal, vol. iii., published at Concord, 1824, this account: "The following song was written about one hundred years since to commemorate one of the most fierce and obstinate battles which had been fought with the Indians. Captain Lovewell was a son of Zaccheus Lovewell, an ensign in the army of Oliver Cromwell, who came to this country and settled at Dunstable, where he died at the great age of 120 years, the oldest white man that ever died in New Hampshire; he left three sons, who were all men of distinction—Zaccheus, a colonel in the French war, 1759; Jonathan, a preacher, representative and judge, and John, the hero of Pequawkett. Captain Lovewell left two sons and one daughter. The daughter married Captain Joseph Baker, from Roxbury, who lived in Lovewell's town, New Pembroke, which was granted to Lovewell's company in 1728.]

1. * * * * * * *
2. 'Twas high unto Pigwacket, on the eighth day of May,
   They spied a rebel Indian soon after break of day.
   He on a bank was walking, upon a neck of land
   Which leads into a pond as we're made to understand.
3. Our men resolved to have him, and travelled two miles around,
   Until they met the Indian, who boldly stood his ground;
   Then speaks up Captain Lovewell, "Take you good heed" says he,
   "This rogue is to decoy us, I very plainly see."
* * * * * * *
5. They came unto this Indian who did them thus defy;
   As soon as they came nigh him two guns he did let fly,
   Which wounded Captain Lovewell, and likewise one man more;
   But when this rogue was running, they laid him in his gore.
* * * * * * *
7. These rebels lay in ambush this very place hard by,
   So that an English soldier did one of them espy,
   And cried out, "Here's an Indian!" With that they started out
   As fiercely as old lions, and hideously did shout.
8. With that our valiant English all gave a loud huzza,
   To show the rebel Indians they feared them not a straw.
   So now, the fight began and as fiercely as could be,
   The Indians ran up to them, but soon were forced to flee.
9. Then spake un Captain Lovewell, when first the fight began,
   "Fight on, my valiant heroes! you see they fall like rain;"
   For we are informed the Indians were so thick
   A man could scarcely fire a gun and not some of them hit.
* * * * * * *
12. 'Twas ten o'clock in the morning when first the fight began,
    And fiercely did continue until the setting sun,
    Excepting that the Indians some hours before it was night,
    Drew off into the bushes and ceased awhile to fight.
13. But soon again returned in fierce and furious mood,
    Shouting as in morning, but yet not half so loud,
    For as we are informed, so thick and fast they fell
    Scarce twenty of their number at night did get home well.
* * * * * * *
    Of all our valiant English there were but twenty-four,
    And of the rebel Indians there were about fourscore;
    And six ten of our English did safely home return—
    The rest were killed and wounded; for which we all must mourn.
16. Our worthy Captain Lovewell among them thereafter did die,
    They killed Lieutenant Robbins and wounded good young Frye,
    Who was our English chaplain; he many an Indian slew,
    And some of them he scalped when bullets around him flew.
17. Young Fullam, too, I'll mention, because he fought so well—
    Endeavoring to save a man, a sacrifice he fell;
    But yet our valiant Englishmen in fight were never dismayed,
    But still they kept their motion, that Wyman's captain made.
18. Who shot the old chief Paugus, which did the fire defeat,
    Then set his men in order, and brought off their retreat;
    And, braving many dangers and hardships in the way,
    They safe arrived at Dunstable the thirteenth day of May.

Stable Ventilation.

Many owners of stock seem to be as afraid of fresh air as a church sexton. When cold weather comes, they barricade their stables as closely as possible against the outer air, and having by this means secured warmth, believe they have made their stock safe and comfortable. This is a serious error. Cattle and horses require fresh air as much as human beings do, and the same evil results follow in their case as in that of men and women shut up in a confined atmosphere which has been breathed over and over till charged into a fetid poison. Under prolonged exposure to such a poisoned air, delicate animals soon become debilitated, and constitutional tendencies to disease are liable to be developed which might have remained latent or have been outlived under more favorable conditions. Even strong, healthy cattle lose vitality in a close, unventilated stable. It is the part of economy, therefore, to provide suitable ventilation for the stable; and in doing so it should be remembered that not only the consumption of air by the confined animals—equal to about 4000 gallons for a full-grown beast during every twenty hours—but the exhalations from their excrement must be taken into account. Nor must it be forgotten that while an abundance of fresh air is essential to health, warmth is equally so. The problem is to secure thorough ventilation without unduly lowering the temperature. Especially should draughts about the feet, as through cracks in the floor communicating with the outer air, be carefully guarded against. All this involves expense; but the outlay for healthy winter quarters for stock is soon recovered. The food given does its work better; the stock fatten more rapidly and in better condition, and so sell for a higher price at less cost for production; work animals are stronger and more enduring, and hence do better service on the same expenditure for food and care; and the loss from disease, as carefully conducted experiments prove, is very greatly reduced. The stable need not be a palace; but its arrangements for securing warmth and fresh air should be as complete, in their degree, as those of a house for human habitation—a good deal more complete, indeed, than most people seem to think essential.—Examiner.

Care of Harnesses.

The average harness in the rural districts is poorly cared for, and short-lived. Not infrequently it is hung in the horse stable exposed to the ammonia generated from a pile of fermenting manure. The stable may be furnished at odd spells with bedding or absobents of some kind, but these are not promptly renewed, and there is great waste of the most valuable constituent of manure. The harness has the benefit of the ammonia, and the effect is about the same as washing it with lye. The harness rots, cracks, and without frequent oiling comes to grief at an early date. The safer way is to have a place for the harness in the carriage house, or some building outside the stable. If the stable alone is available, it should be kept free from the smell of ammonia by the constant use of absorbents, sawdust, sods, road dust, straw, or refuse hay. A harness properly cared for and kept clean and pliable will last twice as long as one that is neglec ed. It is much cheaper to spend ten cents for neat's-foot oil, once in three months, than fifty cents at the harness maker's.—American Agriculturist for January.

Wit and Wisdom.

Of two evils choose the least—to swear off from.—Lowell Citizen.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate for Wakefulness.

DR. WM. P. CLOTHIER, Buffalo, N. Y., says: "I prescribed it for a Catholic priest, who was a hard student, for wakefulness, extreme nervousness, etc., and he reports it has been a great benefit to him."

Any girl will tell you that gold bangles are warmer than worsted wristlets.—N. O. Picayune.

Good health is impossible when the blood is impure, thick and sluggish, or when it is thin and impoverished. Under such conditions, boils, pimples, headache, neuralgia, rheumatism, and one disease after another is developed. Take Ayer's Sarsaparilla and it will make the blood pure, rich, warm and vitalizing.

Agricultural: "Trees in windy places should be stiffened with a mound of earth. Exclude mice in the same way!"—Country Gentleman.

GOOD ADVICE.—Use Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar for a cough or cold.

Pike's Toothache Drops cure in one minute.

Watches are now so vulgarly common that the only way to be considered toney is to ask other people what time it is.—Philadelphia Evening News.

The great sale of Swedish Remedies is astonishing, and for enriching the blood, creating an appetite, or strengthening the whole system nothing can surpass these remedies.

As we shall issue no calendars for 1883, parties who have sent a three cent stamp for one will please call at this office and identify their property.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

Eyes brighten, cheeks become rosy, muscles gain strength by the use of Brown's Iron Bitters

A vocation—First small girl: "I know what I'm going to be when I grow up." Second ditto: "What are you going to be when you grow up?" First small girl: "A widder!"

Ladies should wear a Hop Plaster over the small of the back, as it cures all pains and aches. 25 cents at any drug store. All ready to apply.

Great things are expected from the newly-elected officials all over the country; but the general experience of the people is similar to that of the lady who paid $5 a dozen for Cochin China eggs, but when she came to look into the nest she discovered that they had hatched out Muscovy ducks.—Texas Siftings.

Congress Yeast Powder contains no alum ammonia, terra alba, or any other injurious ingredient, but is made from absolutely pure Cream Tartar. It has the largest sale of any baking powder in Portland.

SCROFULA,

and all scrofulous diseases, Sores, Erysipelas, Eczema, Blotches, Ringworm, Tumor Carbuncles, Boils, and Eruptions of the Skin, are the direct result of an impure state of the blood.

To cure these diseases the blood must be purified, and restored to a healthy and natural condition. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has for over forty years been recognized by eminent medical authorities as the most powerful blood purifier in existence. It frees the system from all foul humors, enriches and strengthens the blood, removes all traces of mercurial treatment, and proves itself a complete master of all scrofulous diseases.

A Recent Cure of Scrofulous Sores.

"Some months ago I was troubled with scrofulous sores (ulcers) on my legs. The limbs were badly swollen and inflamed, and the sores discharged large quantities of offensive matter. Every remedy I tried failed, until I used AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, of which I have now taken three bottles, with the result that the sores are healed, and my general health greatly improved. I feel very grateful for the good your medicine has done me.

Yours respectfully, MRS. ANN O'BRIAN."
148 Sullivan St., New York, June 24, 1882.

☞ All persons interested are invited to call on Mrs. O'Brian; also upon the Rev. Z. P. Wilds of 78 East 54th Street, New York City, who will take pleasure in testifying to the wonderful efficacy of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, not only in the cure of this lady, but in his own and many other cases within his knowledge.

The well known writer on the Boston Herald, B. W. BALL, of Rochester, N. H., writes, June 7, 1882:

"Having suffered severely for some years with Eczema, and having failed to find relief from other remedies, I have made use, during the past three months, of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which has effected a complete cure. I consider it a magnificent remedy for all blood diseases."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

stimulates and regulates the action of the digestive and assimilative organs, renews and strengthens the vital forces, and specially cures Rheumatism Catarrh, Neuralgia, Rheumatic Gout, General Debility, and all diseases arising from an impoverished or corrupted condition of the blood, and a weakened vitality.

It is incomparably the cheapest blood medicine, on account of its concentrated strength, and great power over disease.
